

ABSTRACT

A method and machine for sealing a heat sealable material includes the capability to dispense a desired length of the heat sealable material, automatically select a heating time based on one or more sealing parameters, and apply heat to a portion of the heat sealable material according to a sealing routine that utilizes the automatically selected heating time.